Introduction

---

What Are They Thinking?

Materials:
- “What Are They Thinking?” worksheet
- Pencils

Directions:
- Teacher gives each student a copy of the “What Are They Thinking?” worksheet.
- Teacher instructs students to look carefully at the picture for clues about what each character is thinking.
- Students write what each character might be thinking inside the thought bubble for that character.

---

Students Read the Story

Materials:
- World map or globe
- Book, Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner
- “What Are They Thinking?” worksheet
- Pencils

Directions:
- Teacher tells students that they will be reading a story from Africa about a well-known spider, named Anansi (Ah-nahn-see). Teacher shows Africa on map or globe.
- Students take turns each reading one page aloud.
• After they have read the story, teacher gives students another copy of the “What Are They Thinking?” worksheet and tells them to fill in the thought bubble for each character.

• Teacher asks students to share how their two versions of the worksheet are the same and how they are different.
Discussion Questions

For Assessing Comprehension

- Who is this story about?
- Describe Anansi.
- Describe Turtle.
- Where does this story take place?
- What is the conflict or problem?
- What was Anansi doing when Turtle arrived?
- What is “the law of the jungle?”
- What did Anansi tell Turtle to do when they were sitting at the dinner table?
- What did Anansi do when Turtle left to wash his hands?
- What did Anansi have for dinner?
- What sounds did Anansi make as he ate quickly?
- Why did Anansi send Turtle off to wash his hands a second time?
- How did Turtle’s hands get dirty the second time?
- What did Turtle do to keep his hands clean?
- What did Anansi receive in the mail?
- How did Anansi feel about the invitation? Why?
- What problem did Anansi have getting to Turtle’s house?
- How did Anansi solve the problem he had getting to Turtle’s house?
- How did Turtle trick Anansi?
Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner

For Assessing Interpretation

- How can you tell Anansi is a spider?
- How do you think Anansi felt when Turtle showed up at dinnertime?
- What do you think about “the law of the jungle?”
- How did Anansi know that he would be able to eat a lot of food while Turtle was gone?
- What if Rabbit came to dinner? Would Anansi be able to eat a lot while Rabbit went to wash his hands?
- How did Anansi know that Turtle’s hands would still be dirty when he returned to the table the first time?
- What do you think Anansi would have done if Turtle had put on his slippers and had clean hands after he washed the first time?
- Describe Anansi’s house.
- Describe Turtle’s house.
- What foods do you think Turtle had at his feast?
- What lesson did Turtle teach Anansi?
- What did you learn from this story?
- Anansi said, “I guess my mama was right: What goes around comes around!” What did he mean?
- The book’s illustrator used certain colors and designs to show that the story takes place in Africa. Find examples in the book to show how he did this.
- The illustrator chose to make Turtle blue, even though he modeled Turtle after a group in which many of the turtles are normally brown in color. Why do you think he might have done this?
- Choose another title for this story and tell why you chose that title.
Point of View

Directions:
- Discusses the concept of point of view with students.
- Tells students that stories differ depending on who is telling them.
- Instructs students to retell the story from the point of view of either Anansi or Turtle.
- Asks how Anansi’s and Turtle’s stories were different.

Verbs (Differentiated Learning)

Materials:
- Book, Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner
- “Verbs” worksheet
- Lined paper
- Pencils

Directions:
- Teacher reviews definition of verbs with students.
- Teacher divides the class into three groups.

Group A:
- Re-read the story with the teacher. Identify the verbs on each page.

Group B:
- Complete the “Verbs” worksheet by circling the verb(s) in each sentence.

Group C:
- Complete the “Verbs” worksheet by circling the verb(s) in each sentence.
• Write five new sentences about the story and circle the verb(s) in each sentence.

1. Anansi was sitting down, eating his dinner.
2. Turtle knocked on his door.
3. Turtle reached for the bowl of yams.
4. Anansi asked Turtle to wash his hands.
5. Anansi ate all the food as fast as he could.
6. Turtle crawled away with an empty tummy.
7. Turtle sent an invitation to Anansi.
8. Anansi jumped into the pond.
9. Anansi floated on the top of the water.
10. Anansi kicked his legs and bounced as hard as he could.
11. Turtle watched Anansi splashing.
12. Anansi gathered big rocks and filled his pockets.
13. Turtle said, “You know you can’t sit down to dinner with your jacket on!”
14. Anansi slowly took off his jacket and hung it on the back of the chair.
15. Anansi floated as he watched Turtle eat every bite of the feast.
17. Anansi learned a lesson.
18. Anansi walked home.
Mixed-Up Proverbs

Materials:
- “Mixed-Up Proverbs” worksheet
- Scissors

Directions:
- Teacher explains that proverbs are well-known sayings that contain folk wisdom. They are short popular sayings that express an obvious truth.
- Tells students that proverbs are very important in African cultures as well as many other cultures around the world. Many African folktales include proverbs that summarize the lesson taught in the story.
- Gives examples of popular proverbs with which students may be familiar (e.g. “The early bird gets the worm”) and discusses meanings. Teacher asks students to share proverbs that they know.
- Tells students to cut out the phrases in the boxes on the “Mixed-Up Proverbs” worksheet and place them on their desks so that they can see all the words. Teacher instructs students to place the phrases that begin with a capital letter on the left side of their desks. Teacher instructs students to place the phrases that end with a period on the right side of their desks.
- Instructs students to work with a partner to try to match up the two halves of each proverb.
- Students find the matching halves that make the most sense and put them together.
- Asks students to share their proverbs.
- Asks students what they think each proverb means.
Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner

Proverbs:
- What goes around, comes around.
- Having a good discussion is like having riches. When the drum beat changes, the dance changes.
- Even the highest eagle comes down to the treetops to rest. Do not look where you fell, but where you slipped.
- If you don’t stand for something, you will fall for something. A stone from home is worth ten from the riverbed.
- Whenever you hide your problems, nobody can help you. No one can perform a celebration by himself.
- Success is possible because of others. A ripe melon falls by itself.

Fact or Opinion

Materials:
- “Fact or Opinion” worksheet
- Pencils

Directions:
- Teacher explains that a fact is something that can be proven. An opinion is a feeling or belief that can’t be proven.
- Students complete the “Fact or Opinion” worksheet.
Worksheet Directions:

- Read each sentence. Write F if it is a fact. Write O if the sentence expresses an opinion.
1. Anansi is a spider.
2. Anansi is greedy.
3. Turtle has a shell.
4. Turtle can travel on land or in the water.
5. Turtle is clever.
6. Bobby and Sherry Norfolk are the authors of the book.
7. Turtle is a good cook.
8. Anansi ate peanut soup, and rice and beans.
9. Turtle lives in the pond.
10. This is a great book.

Onomatopoeia

Materials:
- Book, Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner

Directions:
- Teacher asks students what the word “onomatopoeia” means (a word that sounds like its meaning, the word imitates the sound that it represents).
- Teacher asks students for examples of onomatopoeia (roar, boom, tinkle, bang, smash, growl, click, buzz, fizz, moo, clang…).)
- Students re-read the story and identify onomatopoeic words (slurp, gobble-gobble, munch-crunh, burp, splish, splash, ker-splash, popped).
Writing

Materials:
- Lined paper
- Pencils

Directions:
- Teacher instructs students to write a new story using “the law of the jungle” (if you have company and you have food, you must share the food with your company).

Dramatic Arts

“Law of the Jungle” Skits

Directions:
- Teacher reviews the meaning of “the law of the jungle” with students.
- Teacher instructs students to work in small groups and create skits about “the law of the jungle.”
- Each group presents its skit to the class.

Dialogue and Expression

Materials:
- Book, Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner

Directions:
- Teacher reminds students that when characters in a story are talking, their words are enclosed in quotation marks. Teacher introduces the word “dialogue” to students.
- Tells students that there are many clues to help the reader know how to say the words that a character is speaking. The reader must look at the context of what is happening and the illustrations. The illustrations show the character’s body language and facial expressions.
- Asks students to review the dialogue on the following pages and say the words using appropriate expression: pages 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9, 10, 14, 16-19, 21, 23, 27-29, and 32.
• Asks students to look at the dialogue on pages 16, 17, 23, and 32 and see if they can determine what is different about the dialogue in on these pages than in the rest of the story. (On these pages, Turtle and Anansi are thinking to themselves instead of talking to one another. When thinking or speaking aloud to one’s self, the dialogue is still considered a quote and is punctuated as such.)
Anansi’s Home

Materials:
- Book, Anansi and Turtle Go to Dinner
- Large pieces of paper
- Markers
- Optional: Books about Africa

Directions:
- Teacher asks students what they know about the African jungle.
- Teacher asks students to draw a map from Anansi’s house to Turtle’s house.
- Students should use information from the text and illustrations in Anansi and Turtle Go To Dinner as a reference as well as their imaginations and previous knowledge to create the map.
- Books about Africa may be helpful to create more detailed maps.
